

Observation 0:

3. Organic Allowance

Organic Resource Allocation I Programme

Category
Research I am finding that people are able to get resources based on a few work related monetary options. These include: time-based income, profit income, and task based income. These options limit the amount of resources available to each person based on their ability, not their need. If they do not have the ability to meet the ability requirement for the work amount required for their resources, a person with the ability is given the monetary amount for the person in need's resource, in hope that the person with the ability has the level of authority or ability to allocate the resource or resource amount to the person in need. The amount of failure for this process to correctly take place is beyond the level of recovery available for the persons in need. For this reason, the entire economy will have to be retrained to organically allocate resources to persons in need. The work ability for these resources will have to be organically determined as being their organic ability to live and not work. For this reason, I have begun to learn coding and programming languages beyond HTML and CSS, in order to build a programme that allows for this level of work to be achieved. Because monetary circulation is now the structure for which resource circulation relies, monetary circulation will have to become organic. This programme will need to be an organic work option for money work. It will only be money work for money, until resources are allocated organically once more through conservation.
Knowledge Conservation is holding resources for wildlife populations. With the usage of the structure of Systemisation Levels, humans can learn to live at a level of 0 Systemisation, Wild. In this way, they will be able to live in nature once more, foraging for their food or water, as these resources become available to them through this new Solution's structure. This allows for the relative wildlife to these humans or humanoids, to also be able to forage for their needed food or water, where they become available. It will be needed for the people contributing resources to the Wild Level of Systemisation, to voluntarily do so.